Old Bridge on Dayton Avenue Being Wrecked To Put in New Span

WORKERS TEAR DOWN old Dayton Avenue bridge and drive piles for new structure. (Record-Herald Photo)

A heavy drop hammer smashing down with a force of more than 25 tons is rapidly making a new span across Paint Creek at Dayton Avenue a reality.

Late Thursday the big 2,000-pound hammer was driving the last pile for one of the supporting tiers some 12 feet below the water line.

R. V. Wood, bridge engineer, said another tier of seven piles would be driven probably beginning Friday.

He said if the bridge crew is "lucky" it should be finished with the bridge within another 30 days.

There is always the possibility that the crew may run into bed rock which will slow down the pile driving progress.

Quarter Of Inch A Blow

The big hammer only pushes the pile down about a quarter of an inch a blow. Each pile will go some 12 feet below the water.

After the piles have been driven concrete collars will be poured around the piles to protect them from rusting.

Temporary wooden piles have been erected to support the added load of the drop hammer equipment which operates from the old bridge.

Protest Storm Raised By Mock Navy Attack On Beach at Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Morris Fineberg, 56-year-old veteran Boston Post photographer, was killed and four others, including three naval officers, were injured yesterday in a mock marine and navy amphibious assault on a Boston bathing beach before thousands of spectators.

Fineberg was struck by a fragment from an exploding mortar while photographing the demonstration staged at Carson Beach in south Boston as part of the Marine Corps League National Convention.

James L. Callahan, Boston Globe photographer, said he was standing about five feet from Fineberg when the latter was struck on the head by a piece of shrapnel just as 1,500 marines from the second division were splashing ashore to "secure" the beach.

"Outrage" Say Police

The assault landing was termed "an outrage" by Boston Police Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan.

He said, in a statement, that school officials who gave children a day off to witness the demonstration "should be put away for sending the children over there."

"Only for the tremendous detail of police on duty I don't know what we would have done," Commissioner Sullivan said. "God (Please turn to Page Twenty)

Giving $100 Tips Lands Giver in Mental Hospital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Cab drivers, waitresses and shoe shine boys don't even day dream in sums of $100 tips.

So when tips of that size actually started showing up here—and in numbers—folk started talking.

Cornelius Laroy, a former Michigan machinist who was passing them out, heard that the police were asking why. So he called at the police station and said:

In five days he has given away (and lost at a race track) $15,000 (because "I just wanted to help poor people.")

He also put another $6,000 in the bank. It was the last, he said, of a roll he made playing the stock market.

Moreover, he asserted, if he had his money back, he would give it all away again. Because he made it in the U. S. and he's now planning to return to South Africa, where he said he was born.

Police were trying to recover some of his money. In the meantime, they sent Laroy to a hospital for mental observation.

Woman Falls to Death

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—(AP)—Mrs. Louise Blanchfield, 51, fell 100 feet to her death yesterday from the Denison-Harvard Bridge. Witnesses told police they saw her climb a railing but were unable to reach her before she plunged.

Crossing Crash Fatal

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30—(AP)—John Brubaker, 64, and James F. Newman, 57, both of nearby South Charleston, were killed yesterday when their car was struck by a New York Central Diesel locomotive east of Springfield.

As soon as the piles have been driven, a crane from the George Igle Company in Columbus will lift off the bridge tresses in quarter sections.

The flooring will be laid and covered with black top. Wood said the black top will be good for about 25 years.

He indicated that the level across the bridge will be dropped to approximately the same grade as the railroad tracks so that drivers won't have to go over a hump when crossing the span.

Floor beams taken from the structure sagged about an inch, Wood said. When heavy trucks went over them they went down another inch or so, he added.

Youthful Burglar Faces Reformatory Guilty Plea Made By Charles Barton

Charles Barton, 17, who was arrested while burglarizing the Country Club Drive-In Monday night, pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking and entering inhabited residences, when arraigned before Probate Judge Rell G. Allen late Thursday and was sentenced to serve five to 30 years in the state reformatory at Mansfield.

He will be taken to that institution without delay.

Barton was charged with burglarizing the Miss Bess Shoop, Brady Howard and Phillip Tatman homes.

When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, Barton remained silent.

Prosecutor Clark Wickensimer was present and made a statement.

It was pointed out in connection with the five to 30 years sentence, that burglarizing an inhabited residence carries with it life imprisonment, unless the court finds extenuating circumstances, in which case he may give the offender five to 30 years.

The law provides that persons who burglarize inhabited residence properties can not be placed on a suspended sentence.

Barton had spent three years in the Boys Industrial School.

Seven burglaries and thefts were attributed to him after his arrest here this week.

Settlement Reached In Goodrich Strike

DAYTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Negotiators announced today they had agreed to settle the 34-day old Goodrich rubber strike.

Asa Tiller, international representative of the CIO United Rubber Workers, announced the agreement.

He said a new contract will be signed late this afternoon with the B. F. Goodrich Co.

The strike over wages and pensions affected production workers in Goodrich plants in Akron, Tuscaloosa, Ala., Cadillac, Mich.; Clarksville, Tenn.; Los Angeles; Oakes, Pa.; and Miami, Okla.

It began Aug. 21 after expiration of the old contract. Negotiations began in Chicago but were moved to Dayton.

Neither Tiller nor company officials would disclose terms of the agreement immediately. They said statements were being prepared for release later.

Fighting Words Keynote Drive For 'Fair Deal'

'Veep's' Love Affair, Target of Jokes By the President

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30—(AP)—President Truman confronted Capitol Hill opponents today with a new threat to keep Congress in session until it enacts his entire "fair deal" program.

And, if that course fails, he said the Democrats "will win with that program" in 1950 and again in 1952.

In fighting words, he sounded the keynote for Democratic orators in next year's congressional campaigns at a testimonial dinner for the party's national chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr. Boyle, like the president, is a Jackson County Missourian.

The president, speaking last night at the end of a program in which a long list of talkers, including Vice President Barkley, preceded him also:

1. Promised to battle for measures to raise the country's income to $300,000,000,000 annually and establish "an income level in the country of $4,000 per family per year" which he said "is not a pipe dream."
2. Hinted that Barkley, a frequent caller on Mrs. Carleton Hadley of St. Louis, might be getting married soon.

Cruel Hoax! Missing Flier Report Admittedly False

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP)—Mysterious "mind waves" and international double-talk touched off a useless ocean search for two missing Italian fliers yesterday.

Planes and ships joined in a renewed hunt after flash of word indicating the aviators were alive and afloat near the Bahama Islands.

The rescue operations were called off later in the day when it developed that a "message" supposed to have been sent by the fliers was received by a doctor in Rome via "telepathic currents"—not by radio.

Garbled version of the doctor's report gave momentary hope that the two Italians—John M. Brondello and Camillo Bargioglio—might still be alive after being missing 12 days.

The fliers left the Azores Sept. 16 in a small, single-engine plane and expected to arrive in New York the next day.

The report that started yesterday's futile search originated with Dr. Fioravante Caldari in Rome.

Clinton Air Base To Close in Month

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—The Air Force said today that the 2760th air base unit, an all-weather flying outfit, will be transferred to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, from the Clinton County Air Force Base.

The move is expected to begin within a month. As soon as personnel have been moved, the Clinton County Base will be closed down.

Dr. John McBride Dies In Service to People

HILLSBORO, Sept. 30—(AP)—Dr. John McBride, 74, who said he delivered more than 4,000 babies in 50 years, died from injuries received in an automobile accident. His own automobile struck him as he walked from it to deliver another baby.

Despite his injuries, Dr. McBride completed the job, then went to a hospital.

$5,809,990,000 Foreign Aid Given Approval by Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Congress sent to President Truman today the second of two bills designed to pump $7,124,000,000 into foreign recovery and military aid.

The president's signature was the only thing needed to start the dollars working in the giant effort to defeat Russia in the cold war.

The Senate completed action last night on a $5,809,990,000 program to bolster the economies of western Europe and other friendly nations.

The big money bill was approved without a word of opposition. A short time earlier, the House had passed the bill with critics taking only a brief final slap at the program.

Two days ago Congress authorized a $1,314,010,000 arms bill. The measure provides enough cash to start shipments of $450,000,000 worth of arms overseas. The rest of the money must be provided later by appropriation.

Government officials said yesterday the first arms cargoes will begin moving to Atlantic Pact countries by mid-November. American military experts are due to go overseas in about two weeks.

102,000 Miners Sent Back By Lewis---Violence Goes on

(By the Associated Press)

John L. Lewis put 102,000 of his striking United Mine Workers back in the pits today in the first break of the 12-day-old coal walkout.

A word from the UMW chief-tain narrowed the nationwide strike to the industrially-vital bituminous field of the central-eastern region of the United States.

Lewis ordered 80,000 eastern Pennsylvania anthracite miners and 22,000 bituminous diggers west of the Mississippi to resume work Monday.

Western bituminous diggers and

A telegram to president of UMW districts announced the action. Lewis said:

"The suspension of mining in the western and anthracite areas is not now vital to the pending wage negotiations."

The telegram said the move was taken to "minimize loss to all parties."

Nearly 400,000 other UMW members in the bituminous fields apparently were set to continue their crippling "no day week" which began September 19.

the anthracite workers walked out in a sympathy move when diggers quit the mines to protest failure of southern operators to contribute to the union's welfare fund.

Nearly 15,000 non-union miners are continuing to provide a trickle of soft coal to the fast-dwindling national stockpile.

Their efforts are bolstered by the output of another 15,000 members of the Progressive Mine Workers of America in Illinois. PMW workers are not involved in the UMW walkout.

Sewage Rates Are Increased

Additions to Disposal Plant Raises Costs

Statements calling for increased payments of sewage rates were mailed out Friday by Marie Melvin, city auditor.

The increases have been effected to help finance the construction of tanks, pumps and other equipment needed to give sewage a secondary treatment at the sewage disposal plant.

Additions to the disposal plant costing approximately $90,000 are being built now by the Christopher Construction Company of Columbus.

The new rate increases call for boosts of approximately 60 cents a quarter for residential users.

Commercial rates will be upped considerably and will be comparable to those charged when the primary treatment end of the sewage disposal plant was built.

Statements will cover October, November and December.

Bid of the Christopher Construction Company of Columbus for $89,976.25 for the construction of the secondary treatment additions was awarded June 20 by the city.

Of the amount, approximately $5,000 is still on hand from a $60,000 bond issue passed a few years ago. The balance will be financed from the rate increases.

Dies of Brain Tumor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP)—Mrs. Allen J. Ellender, wife of the Louisiana senator, died early today in a hospital. She was 54.

The senator's office reported death was caused by a brain tumor, discovered only after she had entered the hospital yesterday. She had complained of severe headaches for weeks.

American-born Jap Hears Verdict in Tearless Silence

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30—(AP)—Stony faced, Iva Toguri D'Aquino heard herself convicted of treason last night—for telling American troops their ships had been sunk in Leyte Gulf and they were "orphans of the Pacific."

A somewhat reluctant federal court jury of six men and six women brought in the verdict after four days' deliberation. A surprised "Oh!" of apparent disappointment, swept the courtroom.

Iva—Los Angeles-born and educated—remained as stoic as she had during the 12-week trial. Head bowed, she said nothing. No tears. Later she told her attorney "I can't understand it." An appeal is planned.

October 6 was set for sentencing. The minimum sentence would be five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine; the maximum—death. But the government did not ask the death penalty.

3 American Ships Held by Chinese

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30—(AP)—Three American ships operated by the Isbrandtsen Line of New York are being forcibly held at the mouth of the Yangtze River by two Nationalist gunboats.

Aboard two of them, the Flying Independent and the Flying Clipper, are a handful of foreign passengers including four Americans, three Chinese passengers and 126 Korean repatriates and 10,000 tons of outgoing cargo.

The third ship, the Flying Trader, was trying to enter the Yangtze for Shanghai to discharge and load cargo in this Communist-held port. (Shanghai has been blockaded by the Nationalists since June 25).

Deadline Nears In Negotiations Over Pensions

Banking of Furnaces Started—Company in Ohio Settles Case

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30—(AP)—Big Steel and the CIO got together with federal mediators today in a last ditch try to stave off a nationwide steel strike at midnight.

But even as they met, the news was not good.

From coast to coast, and from the gulf to the border, the gigantic steel industry banked its fires in readiness for the strike. And thousands of Philip Murray's United Steelworkers jumped the gun in wildcat walkouts.

William N. Margolis, assistant director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, and Peter Seitz, its general counsel, met with the disputants.

Surprisingly, there was an air of good humor.

Nobody mentioned in public the point at issue: Should the union help pay for its insurance and pensions?

But Murray joked with reporters and he grinned as he asked Margolis:

"Is the enemy here yet?"

Mediator Powerless

A mediator has no power—other than the power of suggestion. Sometimes he can hit on an idea that is acceptable to both sides. But neither the union nor the companies needs to pay any attention to what he says.

Seven Die in Fire Of Two-Story House

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30—(AP)—A fast-moving fire roared through the interior of a two-story frame house in northwest Kansas City early today, killing seven persons and injuring four.

Approximately 20 persons lived in the house, many of them aged. Many of those who escaped fled from the flames in their night clothes.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined.

The Red Cross identified the dead as: Mrs. Florence Richards, 85; Mrs. Cora Andrews, 68; Owen Richards, 45 and Lorraine Ellis, 17.

Mrs. Myrtle M. Hershey, 25, and her two children, Myrtle Marie, 9 months, and Cletus M. Hershey, Jr., 26 months.

Cletus M. Hershey, the husband of Mrs. Hershey, was working nearby as a night watchman when he heard of the fire. He rushed to the building and after two attempts was able to make his way to the second floor where the family lived, but they were already dead.

The fire gutted the interior of the house.

Last year's figure was 23,849, including 12,170 veterans.

Biggest increases were reported in the colleges of agriculture arts and sciences, education and the graduate school.

Coal Mine Situation

This meager activity in the fields caused tempers to flare.

Dynamiting, rifle-fire and rock-throwing became more common in the nation's coal fields. Prospects of an early settlement of the UMW's "no pension no work" dispute grew more remote.

Dynamite blasts rent two tipples at Grass Flats in Clearfield County, Pa., not far from Snow Shoe Mountain and near Morgantown, Ky.

Robely M. Smith, president of the Juncedale Coal Company at Grass Flats, blamed the tipple blast on UMW pickets.

No one was hurt in that blast nor at the wrecked coal mine tipple of the Hawkes Coal Company in Kentucky. Deputy Sheriff Tom Cox said Kentucky police are investigating the possibility the dynamite was set off by UMW pickets.

A 15-truck convoy descending Snow Shoe Mountain in central Pennsylvania was struck by a fusillade of shots yesterday. The trucks were carrying non-union coal from the mines to tipples where the coal was to be cleaned, crushed and loaded on railroad cars.

No one was hurt.

Empty pop bottles and lumps of coal flew in Dover, O., as striking miners stopped five trucks loaded with coal.

Edward Schaar, a part owner of the Schaar Coal Company near here and Anthony Amicone, a Roswell, O., miner, were struck on the head during the melee and required medical attention.

State and city police and sheriff's deputies broke up the battle.

Police Chief Frank Javens said the trouble started when the five trucks, loaded with coal from the Schaar mine, reached a Dover gasoline station. Javens said more than 100 miners, who were waiting at a station scales, ganged up on the drivers and on Edward Schaar who followed the convoy in a pickup truck.

Pop bottles stored near the gas station and coal lumps from the trucks were hurled. Miners chased Schaar across the street and into a funeral home where they drenched him with a garden hose.

Meanwhile, George M. Love, president of Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Company and chief spokesman of the northern and western operators forecast a coal shortage within two or three weeks if the shutdown continues.

ting started, the two sides still seemed far apart.

For example, after last night's meeting with U. S. Steel, Murray had only this to say:

"I wouldn't even comment about hope at this time."

That's how bleak the picture is.

The issue is a pension-insurance program. The union wants steel firms to adopt the formula set down by President Truman's fact-finding board. This is a 10-cent-an-hour contribution paid entirely by industry. The union says it's the minimum they'll take.

Big Steel rejected the proposal. Instead it offered a pension-insurance plan toward which employees would contribute.

Murray and his 500,000 steelworkers wouldn't accept. They say:

"We've given up demands for a pay increase as ordered by the fact finding board. Now industry must yield."

Twice Murray agreed to a strike truce, requested by Mr. Truman, while negotiations for a new steel pact continued.

Blame Shifted

Now—it's a contract or a strike. And, says Murray, if it's a strike the steel industry forced it on the workers.

One small firm—Portsmouth (Ohio) steel corporation—has given in to Murray. Unofficially it's the 14th largest steel producer in the nation. But it employs only 4,000 of the 500,000 unionists.

Main stockholders of Portsmouth are Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland 'financier, and a group of his associates. Henry Kaiser had an interest in the company but sold it last year.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Soybeans responded to a variety of favorable items today by spurring a couple of cents on the Board of Trade. Lard was not far behind as buying entered all fats and oils markets.

In bek of the upturn was an unconfirmed rumor that the government intended to allocate $250,000,000 to foreign countries for the purchase of various fats and oils here.

A good demand for soybeans persisted with prices rising despite an increase in the harvest movement. No. 1 yellow soybeans sold at $2.20 to $2.20½ on track at country station in Illinois and Indiana compared with $2.84 to $2.19 yesterday.

Lard was aided by trade reports of calls for more cash lard from the army and a belief a report on local supplies scheduled for issuance later today, would show a decline of about 5,000,000 pounds since Sept. 15.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(P)—President Truman's program for checking on the loyalty of government workers is two years old Oct. 1.

This is a brief review of how the program came about and what's happened in these two years.

Before 1939 the various agencies and departments of government decided whether to employ a man on the basis of his ability and character.

An old rule of the civil service commission, dating back to 1884, blocked questions about the religious or political beliefs of a man applying for a civil service job with the government.

On Aug. 2, 1939, just one month before World War II started, Congress passed the Hatch Act to keep out of government employ any one who advocated overthrow of this country's form of government.

There were various congressional acts and presidential orders after that date, along the same line, making an employee's loyalty a direct factor in his holding a government job.

In 1946 the House civil service committee department officials — he created to study ways of protecting the government against disloyal employees.

On Nov. 25, 1946 President Truman set up the commission. It made its report to him early in 1947. And on March 22, 1947 he issued his order creating the loyalty check program.

Money was needed to get it started. Instead of voting the money right away, Congress played around with the idea of passing a law to establish its own loyalty program.

It gave up the idea of a program of its own and at last, in July, 1947, voted money for the president's program. The program got going Oct. 1, 1947. It had a purpose:

1. To check on anyone, employed by the government before Oct. 1 of that year, whose loyalty might be in question.
2. To check on anyone looking for a government job after Oct. 1 if there was any reason to question his loyalty.

This didn't mean the FBI would begin a full-scale investigation of everyone in, or coming into, the government.

Checks would be made on the record of each one to see if there was any doubtful stuff on file about him.

If any suspicious information was found, then the FBI made a full investigation. And this could happen: Jones had been in government service but his record was clear. Later, some one informed the government that Jones' loyalty was questionable. An investigation could start then.

In each department a loyalty board was established. If an investigation disclosed doubtful information about an employee, he was called before the board.

He could bring his own lawyer and his own witnesses but in almost no case would he ever be told who had given information against him.

If the department board thought he was disloyal — or thought his loyalty was questionable — it could find him unfit for a government job.

In that case the man could appeal to the head of the government department. If turned down there, he had one final appeal: to a special loyalty review board of 22 men appointed under Mr. Truman's program. If that board considered him unfit, he lost his job.

(A number of regional boards were established around the country to deal with persons looking for work with the government.)

(If a man's job application were turned down on loyalty grounds he could appeal to one of those regional boards. If turned down there, he could appeal to the special loyalty review board.)

That loyalty review board reported yesterday that, of 332 persons whose loyalty was found questionable by the lower boards this had happened:

102 were found unfit; 70 were found all right by the review board or the department heads and allowed to have their jobs; 12 were sent back to the lower boards for a rehearing; and 148 are now in the process of appealing to their department heads or the loyalty review board. There are around 2,000,000 federal employees.

(Employees of the atomic energy commission and civilian employees of the army do not come under this loyalty program. The AEC and the army have their own programs for loyalty checking.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

It Happened in Church

By ROY L. SMITH

The Hebrew prophet Isaiah was a man of such unusual intellectual and moral qualities that he is entitled to take rank with the great thinkers and statesmen of all the ages. Had he been a citizen of one of the great empires of his time, or had he been a Roman or Greek, he would have been as well known and as carefully studied as Seneca or Plato. There is very great danger that modern historical students shall overlook him because he is altogether associated with religion.

A Young Playboy

From one or two rather frank admissions he makes concerning himself it appears that he was something of a young playboy, a "man about town," in his youth. Of aristocratic birth, a member of the family of the reigning house, and very evidently in possession of some wealth, he probably took life easy and was something of a snob, previous to the time of his great religious experience.

According to the belief of all the ancients, any man who suffered was one who had offended the gods in some way, and one who was afflicted with leprosy was, obviously, a person who had so seriously alienated divine favor that he was permanently repudiated. Now it happened that some ten years before Isaiah launched his career as a prophet, Uzziah, the Hebrew king of Judah, and one of the truly enlightened leaders of the nation, had been stricken with leprosy. This posed a problem of the utmost seriousness for the young aristocrat. "If Uzziah, with all his fine ideals and upright life, could not please Jehovah, how can a plain man like me do so?" The whole moral structure of the universe was shaken under his feet.

He Turned to the Temple

It was in the midst of his perplexity that the king died, thus complicating the problem for him all the more. Dying a leper left Uzziah completely discredited. Isaiah, in the meantime, was completely confused.

The Sunday School lesson for October 2, "The Call of Isaiah," Isaiah 6.

Driven by his confusion, the young man turned to religion.

and spent some considerable time in the Temple in Jerusalem trying to think his way through the dilemma. It was on the occasion of one such visit that he was overwhelmed by an amazing vision in which he believed himself called to go out as a spokesman for God. That experience proved to be the turning point in his life.

God Was in the Temple

In a great American city the churches had united in a "go-to-church" campaign, and advertisements were posted in the street cars bearing the slogan:

A MAN NEEDS GOD
In times like these
GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY.

Before we assume that God is not in his holy temple on the Sabbath day (or any other day) let us make sure that we are in a mood to recognize him if he should appear. The young man Isaiah found him heard his call, and experienced the great transformation of his life, because he was seeking him above everything else.

He Can Still Be Found

Before we dismiss the whole idea of church attendance too lightly or too carelessly, let us examine our own purposes with some candor. The average man gets out of a church service exactly what he goes seeking. If we are looking for music only, we will hear whatever music the church service offers. If we are going for the sake of an argument, the sermon will probably provide us with a starting point. If we are going for social reasons, we will probably be disappointed in the friendliness of the people. But if we go for the purpose of meeting God, he will never fail us.

No matter how humble the little chapel, how crude the service, how dull the preaching, or how amateurish the music, if one seeks and finds the presence of God, nothing else will matter much.

In this connection it might not be amiss to remind ourselves that Isaiah, the great soul, found God in the Temple and not out on the golf links, or in the "wide and open spaces." And the chances are still better that we will find him there too.

Films Bring The World To Pupils

New Films Available Weekly for Schools

School children in the county schools will travel far and wide and look into many interesting areas of life during the school year.

Pupils will go from the "Magic of Ireland" to the "Malay Peninsula" and then for a look at the "Pygmies of Africa."

The entertainment of "Alice In Wonderland" and the unfolding of the "Microscopic Mysteries" will be theirs.

These topics and many other will be shown through motion pictures in the county schools.

According to County Superintendent of Schools W. J. Hilty, most county schools have their own projectors.

However, a county projector is available at the firehouse in Washington C. H. for those schools who do not have a projector.

The films will also be left at the firehouse, to be picked up by the schools according to a schedule which will be set up soon.

Ten motion pictures on a wide variety of subjects, educational in nature, are delivered to Hilty's office weekly by the Slide and Film Exchange of the State Department of Education.

Films Are Free

The only cost to the county school system is that of postage. The films are provided free. Hilty said he is planning to set up a system whereby a school can reserve the films for a certain morning or afternoon.

This would clear up the situation that has existed in the past, when the films were picked up at random from the firehouse.

Debate of Our Foreign Policy In China

Somewhere along the line we have let our diplomatic foot slip badly in China. Whether we are doing much better in our handling of the European situation is open to question.

The worst of it is we have been repeatedly warned about it for the past several years by some of our own able representatives whom we have sent there.

Whether this has been due to bungling on the part of our national administration or whether European statesmen were more able to use us to their own advantage, remains the big question.

We have been pouring money into England, to help her stabilize socialism, and also sending billions elsewhere, while observers in some of those countries tell us that most of the recipient nations are not helping themselves as they should. Instead they sit back and tell us to give more and more, or they may go Communist.

Meantime China has practically gone to the Communists. This seems to cause little worry to our national administration. Yet a future world war may find us wishing we had kept our fingers on a friendly "key to the Pacific and the Orient."

Not many Americans will read the "White Paper" on China which the State Department published a few weeks ago. It runs to more than 1,000 pages and much of it would make impossibly dull reading for the layman. But the story it tells, and the inferences and conclusions that it leads to, vitally affect this country and all the rest of the non-Communist world.

First of all, the story is one of unmitigated failure. Secretary Acheson has written, "Nothing that this country did or could have done within the reasonable limits of its capabilities could have changed that result; nothing that was left undone by this country has contributed to it."

Not everyone will totally accept this point of view. The most interesting part of the White Paper is the report made to President Truman by General Wedemeyer after his 1947 mission. This report had never before been published, and it was kept a closely guarded secret. The general was a prophet of a high order. He said that events in China were "as portentous as those leading to World War II," and that if we pursued a wait-and-see policy "the Chinese Communists would emerge as the dominant group." This is precisely what happened. His proposal was that we embark on a sweeping five-year China aid program, including both military and economic aid for the nationalists. However, he said further that this must be accompanied by drastic reforms on the part of the corrupt, inefficient Chiang Kai-shek government. Apparently, the U. S. government believed this would offend Chiang. In any event, the Wedemeyer recommendations were both ignored and suppressed.

Of the China debacle, Time magazine writes: "No one could deny the U.S. diplomats in China had faced fiercely stubborn problems, equally stubborn men. . . Yet in a world racked by the evil and destruction of first fascist, then Communist aggression, the American job was to work with the world it found and know what world it wanted. In China, it tried and it failed. At no point in the long chronicle of its failure had it displayed a modest fraction of the stamina and decisiveness which had checked Communism in Europe."

That last sentence is significant—we have done infinitely better in Europe than in the Far East. And a fear is held by many thoughtful men today that Communism may eventually flow over all of Korea, the Dutch Pacific possessions, even Japan and the Philippines.

More Money than Color in TV

By Hal Boyle

PASSAIC, N. J., (AP)—A video pioneer says it will probably be at least a decade before you can have rainbows in your living room.

"I figure color television is still 10 to 20 years away," said Dr. Allen B. Du Mont, one of the "big three" TV manufacturers.

The Federal Communications Commission is currently holding hearings on whether to authorize color telecasts.

"I think the FCC will postpone the thing until they have something decent to go ahead with," said Du Mont. "There has been no real change in either the CBS or RCA systems in the last three years."

"We are experimenting with half a dozen methods ourselves, but you can't make a foolproof color system overnight. And there just isn't a system ready yet that is commercially feasible."

The FCC announced in advance of its hearings that it wouldn't approve any color system that would make television sets now on the market obsolete.

Du Mont believes that by 1953 there will be 13,500,000 video boxes in use, 1,000 TV stations on the air, and some 950,000 persons in the mushrooming new industry.

The stocky, 48-year-old scientist-turned-businessman began at the bottom. In 1931 the young inventor made the biggest decision of his life — "to be my own boss."

He began turning out cathode-ray tubes in a remodeled garage. "Our sales for the first year totaled exactly $30," he recalled, "and we lost money for six straight years."

By 1941 the firm had an annual gross of $600,000. In 1948 it had grown to $27,000,000, and this year Du Mont expects it will reach $45,000,000 to $50,000,000.

He has his own television network now and just this week dedicated a $2,000,000 plant at East Paterson, N. J., capable of turning out a TV set every 20 seconds.

Du Mont has patented more than 50 inventions himself and still tinkers a couple of hours a day with some 60 TV sets he has set up in a laboratory near his home.

"I used to keep them in the house, but my wife screamed so much I had to move them out to a lab," he said.

He feels that radio will soon be secondary to television and believes this is already true to the larger cities. And he stubbornly contests the contention by some that radio will retain its dominance during daytime hours.

"We already have a bigger audience on some daytime TV programs than competing radio stations," he said.

"Any woman can still do her sewing and watch a television program. I doubt, anyway, that most housewives keep on the go from 7 o'clock in the morning to 7 at night. At least the ones I know don't."

And maybe Du Mont doesn't either. He has a television screen built into the wall of his office. The tuning knobs are in a drawer in his desk.

"I like to peak at the afternoon ball games now and then," he grinned.

Diet and Health

Health Is Affected By Gland Functions

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

BEAUTY may be only skin deep but the beauty of the skin goes deeper, depending not only on the general health of the body but also on the activity of some of its most important structures—the glands of internal secretion.

Just how these glands act to maintain the health of the skin is not known, but the relationship is very close as is evidenced in the large number of skin disorders observed in conditions affecting the glands.

For example, in Addison's disease, which is due to a deficiency of the secretion from the adrenal glands located just above the kidneys, there is a marked discoloration of the skin.

Bane of Teen-Agers

Acne, the bane of teen-agers, seems to be caused, at least in part, by changes which occur in the sex glands during the maturing period.

A deficiency of what is known as estrogens, coming from the sex glands in the female, may produce various disorders of the skin. Thickening of the palms and soles may be associated with the change of life and may respond rapidly to the administration of the estrogens.

Deposits of lime salts in the various areas of the body may occur when there is an excessive secretion from the para-thyroid glands which are located near the thyroid gland in the neck.

Many different types of skin disorders have been attributed to disturbances of the thyroid gland. A deficiency of thyroid secretion may cause loss of hair and may make the skin dry and yellow with a waxy appearance. Scaling of the skin on the lower part of the legs may also appear.

Base of Brain

In certain disorders of the pituitary gland located at the base of the brain, the skin may be raised in folds, especially in the scalp. The hair is thick and coarse, and the skin may be discolored and freckled.

Pregnancy also may be complicated by various skin disturbances. There are changes in the color of the face and breasts. Itching of the skin is fairly common at this time. Irritating, pimple-like eruptions on the arms, legs and upper part of the chest also may occur. Another type of eruption may consist of blisters starting on the abdomen and spreading to the groin, breasts, arms and legs. This rash causes itching and burning. Both of these disorders clear up after the baby is born.

Persons who have skin eruptions of these types should of course consult a physician concerning treatment with the proper gland extracts.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. L. Y.: What causes bright red spots to occur on my hands without any bruise or hurt? They appear suddenly, then fade into purple, then to brown and remain so.

Answer: The cause of this condition cannot be determined without a thorough examination. The spots may be due to a condition known as purpura, which is bleeding into the skin. On the other hand, the disorder may be due to some condition of the skin of the hands.

Husband Convicted Of Killing Wife

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Richard Merle, 26, Evansville college student, faces a life sentence for the killing of his 25-year-old wife last May 28.

The sentence is a three murder returned by a Vanderburgh County jury after a week-long trial.

Merle's wife, Helen, 1948 homecoming queen at Evansville College, was shot at the home of her parents as she was dressing to go to a dance. Merle, a junior at the college at the time, had been separated from his wife. Their two-year-old son, Daryl, witnessed the shooting.

Paroled Gangster Is Killed in Crash

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 30.—(AP)—An auto accident Wednesday fatally injured Frank "cowboy" Chako, one of a four-man gang that robbed a Youngstown railway express office of $35,000 in 1938. Killed with the 31-year-old Chako was John Joseph of Youngstown.

Their car crashed head-on into a truck driven by George Kisela, 33, of Canton. The collision took place near Canfield.

Chako, of Struthers, was captured in 1940 and sentenced a year to one to 25 years in the penitentiary. He was paroled two years ago.

He was the second member of the gang to die in a car accident. Frank Larocco was killed three years ago.

Government By Hysteria Slips

By George E. Sokolsky

It used to be that when a politician wanted to remain in public office, he tried to produce a record of his singular perfections. He listed his achievements; he proposed a grandiose program for their continuance and he damned his opponents.

Now it is different. The politician creates an emergency and develops a hysteria. His object is to convince the people that he alone can meet the evils that are yet to come. These instruments in any other hands opined Mr. Roosevelt, would be shackles upon the American people. Why only in other hands he did not say. When one looks back upon the emergencies that Mr. Roosevelt fathered, they seem indeed to be puny little tales, hardly believable by an adult and mature people. But they were believed and Congress voted accordingly.

Mr. Truman is not so good at emergencies because he obviously does not believe most of them himself, he is not so good at the whopper and somehow lets himself be found out. The result is that the people do not get as excited as they did over Mr. Roosevelt's simulated hysteria. They take Truman with a grain of salt. And Congress votes accordingly.

Now, Roosevelt would have handled the atomic hysteria much better than Truman did. He would have prepared the scene. There would have been an announcement a day or so ahead that the president would make an important statement to Congress at one o'clock on a Friday. The four networks would throw their soap operas into the suds and would give their time to the president. Television would plant itself squarely in the capital. Important leaks would go to favored columnists. Steve Early would look like the cat that swallowed the canary. By that time, the people would have been ready for anything.

Then would come the speech, a masterpiece written by Sam Rosenman and Robert Sherwood. The speech would tell of the wonders of Roosevelt's knowledge of what was going on in the world, as only Roosevelt could tell it. He would approve of science as only the Lord himself could sanction virtue. He would glorify the geiger counter, the seismograph and the clouds that carry dust. Then he would let the cat out of the bag. And television would produce "hail to the chief" with staccato announcements by trained baritone. The country would be agog with hysteria.

Harry Truman, bless his heart, is made of less scenario stuff. He let his story out just in time to get his military aid program through Congress and to give the newspapers pages of guesses and photographs over the week-end. Why he chose this particular week-end is his secret, but there is no hysteria. Somehow, everyone accepted the assumption that sooner or later the Russians would get the bomb by scientific experimentation or expert thievery.

For months now the people have been fed on the details of such thievery in the Alger Hiss Judith Coplon trails and also in the president details of the House committee on un-American activities. It is really remarkable that the Russians were not able to get from the state department a fully manufactured bomb, transported to the Kremlin in the Sacred Cow. We gave them about everything else, and the FBI was forbidden to arrest their spies or anyone associated with them.

So there is no hysteria. The Empire State Building has not been demolished lest it be a target for the atom bomb nor are we all moving into distant places to save ourselves from the horrors of radioactivity. We shall have to take the bomb in our stride, as we have taken the airplane, the block-buster, poison gas and the huge debt which is driving us into the welfare state. In fact, the hysteria is so small that no one even gave Vishinsky a Bronx cheer.

Maybe Harry Truman's scenario was too frigid, like Dean Acheson's speeches. Or maybe in the face of so serious a threat, the American people soberly ask, what kind of a government have we that can consistently only point with pride to failures in the past and with good cheer to costly expenditures for the future?

It's Tough Job To Translate Bible for World

Imagining Language That Has No Word With 'Love' Meaning

By SHERRY BOWEN
NEW YORK, (AP)—Suppose you tried to translate the Bible into a language in which you could find no word for "love."

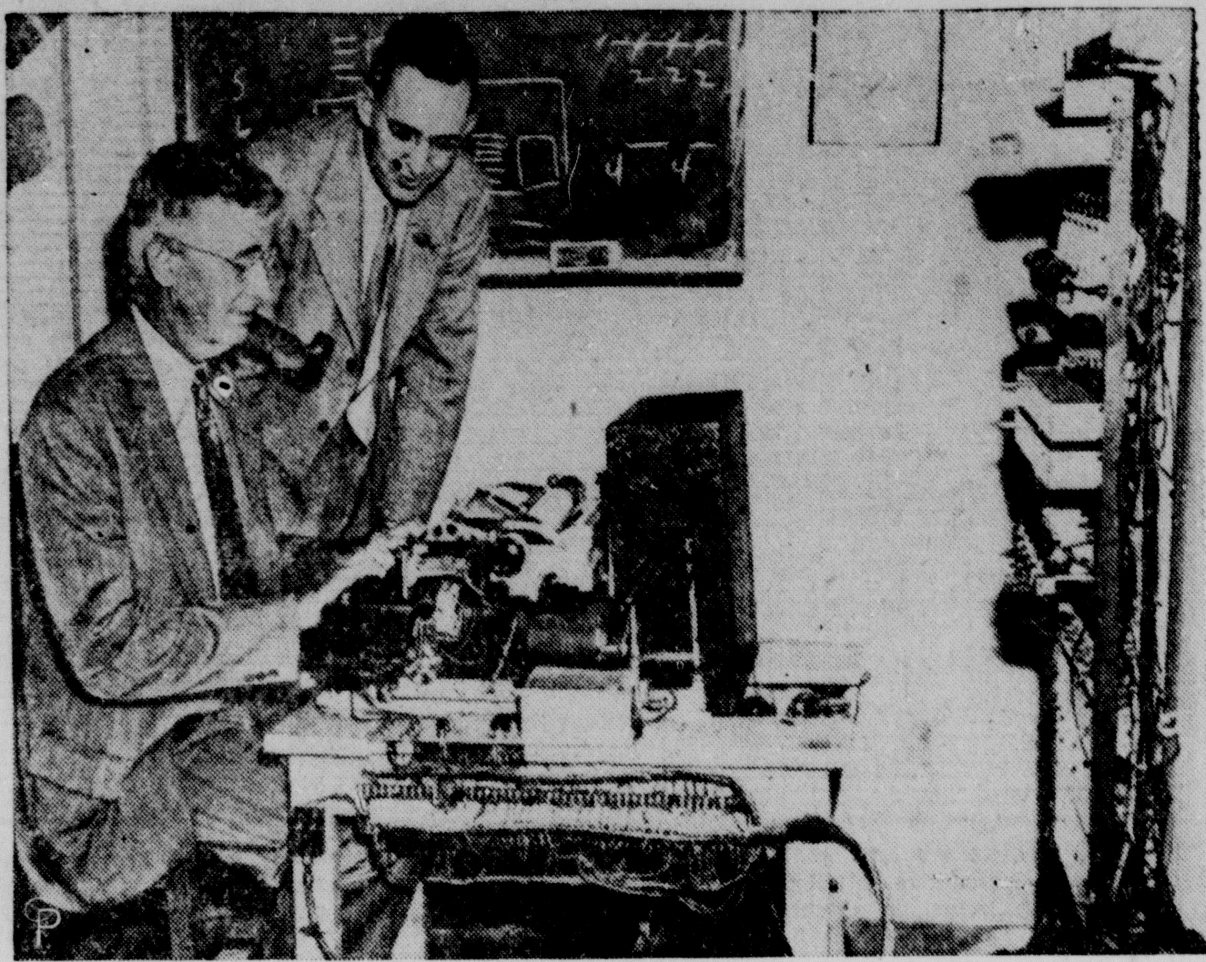

That was the problem one man faced, says Miss Margaret Hills, librarian of the American Bible Society. He finally heard a mother use a word when she talked to her child. She said, "This is the word I use when I mean that I care so much for this little girl of mine that when I think of what is going to befall her when she grows up it hurts me." He had found his word. It meant, literally, "To care so much it hurts."

And how would you translate the vines of the Bible in a land where vines are useless? In one language "tasting death" would mean "chewing a corpse." In another "will of the flesh" denotes a prostitute. In another, a word in one tone means "to laugh." When another tone is used it means "to weep."

The man who first writes the Bible in a language has one of the hardest tasks in the world, says Dr. Eugene A. Nida, the Bible Society secretary for versions. "He is handling the very souls of his fellow men."

Some people have no food made of wheat. Thus "Give us this day our daily bread" would have no meaning. Dr. Nida says ancient Greeks lay down to eat. In the Greek text people "recline to eat." The English text says they "sat down to eat." In the same way texts must gain meaning from the life of the people. Sometimes they have no beds, no chairs. Thus, in some cases, the throne of God becomes a "stool." In one tribe men sit on stools, but rest their feet on sticks. And "God's footstool" becomes "God's footstick."

Last year the American Bible Society had almost 10 million Bibles and parts of Bibles printed, says Dr. Eric M. North, the secretary. The society works with the United Bible Societies in which 24 groups from all over the world distributed 17,508,464 Bibles and parts of Bibles. The society also works with 40 denominations in America. Church missionaries use society books. Church funds help the society. Church men do much of the translating.

The most important work of the society is not at Bible House on Park Avenue here, says Dr. North. Nor is it found in other Bible Houses in many cities of the world. "The major work is done where the man without the Scripture is met by the man with the Scriptures."

That meeting may come on the frozen tundra north of the Arctic Circle. It may be in the rain and heat of the Jungle or among the towering peaks of the Andes. It may be in the streets and offices of great cities or between the corn or cotton rows on the farm. But for those meetings to take place there must be the books. It may be the whole Bible. It may be a translation of one of the Gospels or just the Sermon on the Mount.

In some cases, salesmen from the society are in the field long before missions are there. In other cases faith comes only after men have read their Bibles for themselves in their own language. Hence the need for translations. Some part of the Bible has been translated into 1,108 languages. These languages are used by nine tenths of the people of the world, says Miss Hill.

But there is still much work to be done. Most people in the world have never heard that there is a published Word of God, she says. And there are still about 1,000 languages which do not have Bibles and in which they may some day be printed. Some part of the Bible is put into about 10 new languages a year.

Another vital part of the work is to teach people to read so that they can read their Bibles once they are in print, says Miss Hill. And of the 1,108 languages in which the Bible has been translated, most were first written down for the Bible. Thus, she sees one phase of the work as making men more modern. They are given a written language and taught to read it.

"And the Bible in print is a machine product," says Dr. North. "Often we try to take it to countries where people are primitive or whose economy is farm centered. It can have a fabulous cost for a man who never sees more than $70 a year."

A milder example is Brazil. There, he says, a day's wage is 70 cents. A Portuguese Bible there costs $1.25. In America an English Bible can be printed for $1.00 or less. "If a man here paid in proportion his Bible would cost $14 or $15 or more. This is one of the reasons for Bible societies," he says. "We try to wipe out some of that difference."

He says the sales price of the books pays about one third of the society's costs. Some Bibles are given to poor people who want them. This is done often for those who lost all in the war. But most Bibles are sold. The aim is to make people want the Bible. If they pay, they show they want it even if they pay less than the cost.

And in spite of all the work of Bible societies there is a world wide shortage of Bibles, Dr. North says. From China, Japan, Germany, from jungles, mountains and plains men are calling for more books. In China last year Bibles were flown in to areas cut off by Red drives. "Please send us Scriptures," was the word sent out from Loyang which had been cut off for months. "Bibles were put ahead of money to relieve their poverty," says Dr. North.

There are even black markets in Bibles, he says. Sometimes men write to Americans whose names they learn and beg for Bibles. In some cases they use the Bibles they get just as something to sell. The latest rash of such letters has come from Liberia. But other countries may get the idea. Dr. North suggests that those who wish to give Bibles do so through their own church or through a Bible society they know to be reliable.

October 9 Is Fayette Day At Two Museums

Historical Society
Sponsoring Visit
Free to Members

Sunday, October 9, has been set by officers of the Fayette County Historical Society for a visit to Fort Ancient, the Fort Ancient Museum, and the Warren County Museum in Lebanon, and all Fayette countians who wish to take part in the pilgrimage to the great earthworks and the two museums are invited to do so.

Under arrangements made by officials of the Fayette County Historical Society, with Lawrence J. Gray, assistant supervisor of state memorials, all members of the Fayette County Historical Society will be admitted free upon showing their membership card, to both Fort Ancient Museum and the Warren County Museum. All non members will pay the regular admission charge of 25 cents each. There is no admission to the grounds at Fort Ancient.

In this connection those who wish to become members of the Fayette County Historical Society prior to the trip to the museums may obtain membership cards from Miss Elizabeth Johnson, treasurer, at the Carnegie Public Library, or from other officers of the organization.

Invitation to visit the two museums was extended to the Fayette County Historical Society last summer by Gray, when he appeared here for an illustrated lecture before the local organization.

In accepting the invitation officers of the society here fixed a time when the trees would be at their best in Warren County, so that the trip could be made when the country would be the most beautiful.

Gray is arranging to show Fayette countians about the great earthworks, and for receiving them at both museums.

Plans call for those who desire to take picnic lunches and eat at Fort Ancient, where there is ample parking space and picnic facilities, at 12:30 P. M. on October 9, and following the picnic lunch, a visit will be made to various points of interest about the enclosure.

Visitors will then go to the Fort

Ancient Museum in the valley below the fort, enroute to Lebanon thence to Lebanon, and the Warren County Museum, which is located four or five squares south of the City Building and Golden Lamb Hotel.

Officers of the society here will be on hand to assist in showing local visitors about.

Those who do not care to enjoy a picnic lunch at Fort Ancient may proceed to the museums any time during the afternoon, as they desire.

There will be no meeting place here to proceed in a body, but all may make the trip when they care to.

The pilgrimage is expected to be one of great enjoyment and interest to all who participate.

State C of C Hits Economy Opponents

The Chamber of Commerce here and the state chamber reaffirmed their positions in another flurry caused by Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson's economy-slashes.

Responding immediately to a Washington, D. C. news dispatch which said that aroused civic groups throughout the nation were applying political pressure to nullify Secretary Johnson's orders, the state chamber said:

"No Ohio business organization, to our knowledge, is objecting to enforcement of . . . (orders that will save) $200,000,000 in this fiscal year."

Herschel C. Atkinson, state chamber executive vice-president, said the facts were the reverse as far as chambers in Ohio were concerned.

"In Dayton and in Columbus, where there are immense military installations, business interests . . . have endorsed the economy move 100 percent. The Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce has also approved the action," Atkinson continued.

President Carl M. Everson, of the Columbus chamber, said in his letter of commendation to Secretary Johnson:

"This city has for many years enjoyed the favor of an important military establishment, and during the war, of several such establishments, but we have not taken any position opposing . . . their curtailment when we had assurance that such a move was in the interest of economy."

National Letter Writing Week Is 16 to 22

Postmaster Passmore Calls Attention To Annual Event

Washington C. H., Postmaster W. E. Passmore, calls attention to "national letter writing week" which will be observed throughout the nation from October 16 to 22, inclusive.

In this connection Postmaster Passmore says:

"Ever since each of us were children, we can remember that gray seeing him many would say 'here uniformed mail carrier and on comes Uncle Sam'. Since growing up, all of us have many times had the opportunity of observing the aftermath of pleasure and disappointment when he had gone. While the letter carrier might seem to be commonplace he is about the most welcome visitor in town.

"During many years of service, a mail carrier sees thousands of people come and go and he watches the comedy and tragedy of life unfold. Frequently, the same letter carrier will deliver the letters announcing your birth--and the doctor's bill which followed; invitations to your first birthday party; your graduation announcement; wedding invitations, the wonderful personal letters you looked forward to; or, upon the death of a loved one, he may have delivered letters of sympathy. He sees you grow from a small girl pushing a doll cart, to a young woman wheeling a full sized carriage, complete with gurgling occupant. He may watch you sprout from a boy with lollipop to a young man with pipe in mouth.

"The letter carrier has delivered letters from all parts of the earth--letters of every kind from all kinds of people. But, never, never, has he delivered enough. The wish, the demand, is always for more.

"People react in many ways to their joys and disappointments. A mail carrier, observes their pleasure, anger, sorrow and apathy, depending on whether or not the desired letter is delivered.

"On hearing from an absent son a parent may say: 'He's a swell kid; he never forgets.' Or, when he didn't write, 'Well, I guess he's busy having a good time. He forgets until he's in trouble.' But, here is what the letter carrier hears most: 'I guess I can't expect a letter if I don't write any.'

"Well, why don't people write more letters? One reason is procrastination--that thief of time. It is also the assassin of friendship.

"Also, too many of us wait until we feel we can write 'a real good letter.' Well, practice makes perfect. You'll be surprised how good your letters will get if you write more of them. Some people are self-conscious about their grammar, spelling, etc. 'What will they think of me?' But most people are as scared of you as you are of them. Try writing to your congressman and tell him the kind of legislation you think will help make a better world. Letter-writing alone won't bring us a better world, but it can mitigate the troubles of this one--and make your own life more pleasant.

"The week of October 16 to 22, will be observed as 'national letter writing week', which has become an annual event. So, prepare a list of friends, relatives and former neighbors to whom you should write and get a letter in the mail to them during national letter writing week. The address see will be glad to hear from you and you will feel better for writing. Oh yes, the mail man will be happy to deliver your letter."

Confederate Vets End Their Reunion

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 30.—(AP)—A parade brought the 59th annual reunion of confederate veterans to a close Thursday.

The four old soldiers attending the meeting will ride in automobiles over the same route that President Truman marched here last June.

As the aged comrades-in-arms prepared to say their farewells for another year, one big question remained apparently answered. Where will the 1950 reunion be held?

Two cities have made a strong bid for the meeting — Charleston, S. C., and Biloxi, Miss.

The veterans' commander-in-chief, Gen. James W. Moore, has announced through his adjutant that confederate reunions will be held as long as there are two veterans living.

Operating Costs For Big Cities Up

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—It's costing considerably more to run the nation's biggest cities than it did a year ago.

The census bureau said so last night. Putting together data for the country's 37 largest cities — all having more than 250,000 population each — the bureau found that in fiscal periods ending in 1948:

Municipal government costs totalled $2,771,679,000, a rise of 17.2 per cent over the preceding year, while revenue amounted to $2,364,502,000 for an increase of 14.2 per cent.

As a result, the bureau said, "outstanding indebtedness rose slightly during the year." This kept up a trend which had prevailed through the previous year.

Relief Heads At Conference

Sessions Are Held In Cincinnati

Mrs. Beryl Cockerill, Fayette County relief director; Mrs. Martine Straley, head of the division of aid for the aged in the county, and Mrs. Pauline Swope, child welfare director of the county, have been attending the Ohio welfare conference which has been under way in Cincinnati this week, and ends Friday afternoon.

Spiritual training is the most serious thing lacking in the average social worker, Dr. C. Glynn Fraser, Xavier University, told the conference.

He said their work "should have a sense and feeling of charity, which is a warmth certainly sorely needed in an age grown as cold as ours. In the early ages, we had an era of charity, meaning love of God, and later an era of philanthropy, the Greek for which means love of man.

"In the quick change, the prevailing philosophy was humanitarianism—love of man for his own natural sake. Pity was the moving force now; not the pity ordered by and subordinated to love of God and faith in good works."

"This new kind of pity can become despising, diseased," Dr. Fraser, sociology instructor at Xavier, declared. "It is the kind of pity which kills, ultimately, as with euthanasia, sterilization and unnatural birth control."

The speaker declared that "so long as they do not make religions of sociology and psychology, and especially psychiatry, the professional social workers of our day have a place of importance, in my humble judgment, next only to the parent, the teacher and the minister of God."

Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, told the conference that the word of the Soviets "can not be trusted."

Frankfort to Get New Pumper Truck

The new 500 gallon pumper has been ordered for the Frankfort volunteer fire department and will be delivered in the near future.

The town has made the purchase from the Hoover Fire Equipment Co., Chillicothe, and the new pumper will be equipped with suction hose and ladders, and mounted on an International chassis. It is similar to units purchased by Bainbridge and Clarksburg.

At the present time, the Frankfort department is equipped with a hose truck without a pumper.

Ghost Village Of Everglades Is No Myth

LAKELAND, Fla., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Everglades "ghost village" is a 90-year-old settlement which was abandoned after Indians wiped out a band of smugglers there, Maurice Hale believes.

That is the story told him by Indians when he visited the spot in 1927. With him then were "believe it or not" Robert L. Ripley and three Indian guides.

Hale, a retired Lakeland businessman who has hunted many years in the Glades, said he and Ripley heard about the village while searching for a rare grub-worm called "The Devil Worm" by the Seminoles.

They went there by canal and on foot, hacking a way through the last eight miles of jungle. They found the same difficulties of approach encountered by recent expeditions from Fort Lauderdale.

Hale said Indians told this story about the settlement:

It sprang up shortly before the war between the states, and centered around its sugar mill. For some reason the sugar making

The band kept several Indians there to make Seminole costumes in which the Chinese were disguised and moved further into the United States. One day trouble arose and the Indians killed all the residents.

The Indians still regard the place as haunted and normally shun it, Hale said. He and Ripley found skeletons of about a dozen people. Skull formations indicated some might have been Chinese, Hale said.

Bums Take over Lead; But A L Tie Unbroken

By RALPH RODEN
(By the Associated Press)
The Brooklyn Dodgers held the upper hand in the National League's pennant scrap today while the American League's scramble remained a dead heat between the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

Brooklyn, pre-season favorite to cop the National's bunting, roared into the lead yesterday by mopping up the 1948 kingpin Boston Braves, 9-2 and 8-0, while the St. Louis Cardinals lost again to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-2.

The Dodgers' killing in Boston boosted the Brooks half a game ahead of the Cardinals. Brooklyn has two games left to play with the third place Phils in Philadelphia while the Cards have three to go with the last place Cubs in Chicago.

While the Dodgers ascended to the top of the National League, rain kept the Red Sox and Yankees tied for blue ribbon honors in the American League.

New York's game with the Philadelphia Athletics in the stadium was rained out as was the encounter between the Red Sox and the last place Senators in Washington.

Games Rained Out
The two American League contenders are scheduled to play off their washed out games today. If rain again intervenes the games will be cancelled, as the Yankees and Red Sox are scheduled to open a two-game series in the stadium on Saturday.

Brooklyn had no trouble in whipping the Braves yesterday. The Braves were in the game for only three innings in the opener and they might as well have "stood in bed" for the nightcap. Warren Spahn, the National's only 20 game winner, gave Preacher Roe, crafty Brooklyn left-hander, a run for his money for three innings in the first game.

Tied, 0-0, going into the fourth, the Dodgers ripped Spahn for five runs. Duke Snider drove home the first run with his 23rd home run. Carl Furillo provided an

Holloway Hits 230 In Merchants Loop

D. Holloway rolled a 230 game to set the high-water mark in the Merchants League at Bowland Thursday as the Pennington Blues swept three games from Med-O-Pure.

The Pennington Reds' 32-pin handicap margin was the deciding factor in two of the three games they copped from the Ohio Bell Telephone pinmen. Wiener led the winners.

T. Staley was high man as the Thermo-Built pinmen overcame Pepsi-Cola's handicap advantage to win two out of three.

Gabelman knocked off a 210 and 189, but Washington Produce still lost two out of three to the Air Force. W. Thompson was consistent for the victors with 165, 161 and 175.

Injured Gridder Files Novel Suit

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30—(AP)—John Kimbrough, the former Los Angeles Dons fullback who retired with a knee injury this year, has filed a novel claim. He wants workman's compensation from the California Industrial Insurance Commission.

If his claim goes through, Jerin John would be paid $30 a week and medical expenses, Deputy Commissioner Clell McCredie says.

Kimbrough, former Texas A&M All-American, played three years for the Dons before the injury put him on the shelf. He owns a 1900 acre cattle ranch at Haskell, Tex., and is a distributor for an oil company.

Release of Walters Starts Speculation About His Successor

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds—with or without a manager—headed toward Pittsburgh today and the final series of a season that has found them confounding the predictions only to the extent that they may finish seventh instead of eighth.

They're two games ahead of the eighth place Chicago Cubs with only three games to go.

But most of the uproar today concerned Bucky Walters.

Bucky was relieved as manager of the Reds for the 1950 season. There still was no word as to whether he would direct the club in the final three games against the Pirates. He headed toward Philadelphia and said he'd think about it on the way.

Warren Giles, president of the Reds, said no decision had been made as to Walters' successor and that the new manager wouldn't be named until after the World Series.

But that didn't stop the speculation. One of the first names mentioned in baseball circles here was that of Paul Richards.

Richards, a former catcher, directed Buffalo to the International League pennant this year. He also has been mentioned as a possible pilot for Seattle in the Pacific Coast League.

Other names which figured in the speculation were those of Del Baker, former Detroit manager and now boss for Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League; Jewel Ens, manager of the Reds' farm club at Syracuse; Al Vincent, boss of Tulsa's Texas League playoff champions and Bucky Harris, one time major league pilot and now the manager at San Diego.

If Walters doesn't stop off at Pittsburgh to direct the Reds in their final three games it was expected that he'd name Coach Luke Sewell to handle the club.

Football Guesses For Next Saturday

BY HAROLD CLASSEN
NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP)—Trying to pick Saturday's football winners while still unable to say who will compete in the coming World Series.

Notre Dame over Washington: Even if Washington built a coral of mountains they wouldn't be able to keep Emil (Old Folks) Sitko in check. Notre Dame.

Michigan over Stanford: Michigan has won 24 in a row. Stanford's sophomores probably will make this a rugged fray but the Wolverines appear a touchdown better. Michigan.

North Carolina over Georgia: That bruising battle North Carolina had last week with North Carolina State is exactly what Charlie Justice and his mates needed to pull this one out of the fire. North Carolina.

Tulane over Georgia Tech: Eddie Price, Tulane fullback, will simply love the middle of the Georgia Tech line. Tulane.

Dartmouth over Penn: The Quakers powerful 1948 team could beat Dartmouth by only a touchdown last year. Penn lost much by graduation, the Indians very little. Dartmouth.

Northwestern over Pittsburgh: The boys who back their opinions with cash say the Big Ten Club will win by three touchdowns. That's about right. Northwestern.

Oregon over UCLA: Too much traveling for the Uclans. Oregon.

Navy over Princeton: Here's where the Middies break that string of defeats although George Sella probably will be the game's star. Navy.

Checking off some of the others in a hurry:
Friday: Wake Forest over Boston College, Maryland over Georgetown.

Saturday:
East: Army over Penn State, Brown over Holy Cross, Cornell over Colgate, Harvard over Columbia, Rutgers over Temple, Amherst over Coast Guard, New York over Bucknell.

South: South Carolina over Furman, Clemson over North Carolina State, Vanderbilt over Alabama, Rice over LSU, William & Mary over Virginia Tech, Duke over Tennessee, Mississippi State over Baylor.

Midwest: Ohio State over Indiana, Wisconsin over Illinois, Purdue over Iowa, Oklahoma over Texas A & M, Minnesota over Nebraska.

Southwest: Texas over Idaho, Texas Christian over Arkansas, Texas Tech over West Texas State.

Far West: Southern California over Washington State, Oklahoma A & M over Denver, California over Oregon State.

Mr. Kentucky Derby Now Seriously Ill

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30—(AP)—The condition of Col. Matt J. Winn, 88, impresario of the Kentucky Derby who recently underwent two major operations, took a turn for the worst early today.

Authorities at St. Joseph Hospital said Col. Winn was "a little weaker."

Winn, president of Churchill Downs, developed the Kentucky Derby into the top thoroughbred racing spectacle of the nation after a syndicate which he headed took over the Downs in 1902. As a boy of 13 he saw the first derby run in 1875 and has witnessed every one since.

Mighty Dexter, owned by Elisha P. Parker of Salisbury, Md., finished with a rush in the first heat of the $3,000 Reynolds Trophy Trot to trail the favorite, Try Wryn, by only a length at the wire. The next heat mighty Dexter moved earlier and won by a length in the good time of 2:03 3-5. Try Wryn never contended in this dash and finished fifth.

State, League, an Indian farm, was announced last night by the Cleveland Indians. He will report to the Indians' training camp at Tucson, Ariz., next spring.

Two Long Shots Win At Lexington

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 30—(AP)—A pair of outsiders, Volo King and Mighty Dexter, each captured a heat of feature events at the Lexington Trots yesterday.

Volo King, a $2640 shot from the stable of James L. Smith of Bell Vernon, Pa., went to the top by a nose to take the first heat of the Fairmeade-Greenaces pace from Janie Val in a photo finish.

The favorite, Mr. Erla, was fourth. Silver Peter, owned by E. Eric McIlroy of Grand Bend, Canada, won the second heat but Volo King's 1-2 standings in the summary gave him the winner's end of the $3,000 purse. Volo King toured the mile in the first heat in 2:04.

Drakes-Eagles In Benefit Twin-Bill

The Drakes will face the Greenfield Eagles in the opener of a benefit softball doubleheader at Greenfield Sunday at 7:30 P. M.

The nightcap will bring Strauser and Co. against Sabina at 9 P. M.

The proceeds of the games will go to help Otis Cook, the oldtime ball player, well-known to Fayette County fans.

Cook is a very sick man and the cause couldn't be worthier. Each game matches teams that were never pushovers, so the softball action for the fall is almost prepaid in this case.

DiMaggio Hopes To Get in Game

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP)—Latest word from Joe DiMaggio is that he "hopes" to be in the New York lineup for the week-end series with the Boston Red Sox.

"I feel much better," said Joe yesterday in the Yankee clubhouse before the game with the Athletics was postponed, "yesterday in batting practice it felt as though the bat was swinging me."

"I didn't have any ill effects after the workout and I want to be in there Saturday if I can. I want to sink or swim with the gang."

Cubs Lose At Xenia, 26-6

The WHS Lion Cubs took it on the chin by a 26 to 6 score at Xenia Friday High Thursday night.

But Coach Ron Guinn said he was "well-satisfied" with the boys' playing.

Holbrook scored for the Cubs when he took the ball on a double reverse and scampered 45 yards to tally.

Three touchdowns made by the Cubs were called back by the officials, one for clipping, another for being offside and the third because a backfield man was in motion.

Industrial League Batters 200 Mark

Warner's Shell was credited with the only clean sweep in the Industrial League at Bowland Thursday, as they blanked the Greenfield Merchants. Shope and R. Warner cracked 200.

Med-O-Pure dropped the opener to Moore's Jolly Boys, but came back to win the last two matches. Ralph Warner's 231 was high for the night. Heironimus and Dadds hit 205.

Henry's Coal Yard took two out of three from Barger Brothers, with B. Henry setting the pace.

Stimpfle rolled a pair of 200-plus games as the Jeffersonville Merchants copped two out of three from Wise's.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

AMENLY had thought about another marriage, constantly watching Lilia, in the hotel gardens and at the pool. Watching, also, his wife, whom he distrusted and disliked. And then one night, unable to sleep, knowing that his wife slept heavily as sleep came easily in a little box of tablets, he went out on the balcony that ran past his room and Lilia's, found her door unlocked and went in.

He didn't think of that often; nor of Tom, coming in from next door. He didn't think often of Lilia's face as she switched on the lights; nor of what she said; nor of his senseless frustration before Tom, hearing the raised voice, came in.

Unfinished business. If he hadn't forgotten, neither had she; also he could remind her. He wondered how her husband would react. Even the stupidest man—and he judged Alex Gurney to be quite stupid, would ask questions, but by that time Amenly would be on a plane or ship bound for the mainland.

So he listened, smiling, to Jack Russell saying, "Suppose I take you out to the plantation? It's one you mustn't miss. I'd planned it anyway. Gurney's done a fine job..." and went on into methods, tonnage and statistics generally, while his father agreed and Terry looked at Chris, then away.

On the day Jack drove Amenly to the plantation, Chris telephoned Lilia. He said merely, "Amenly's coming out with Jack this afternoon."

He had called her while she was at lunch. She thanked him and returned to the table. She had been an idiot to run away, a worse one to think she need run. She looked at Alex, who had never failed her. Any failure had been in herself. Recognizing that, she could try again for success, in the important things. She thought, What a fool I was not to tell him at once when I reached home.

"Alex," she said, "could you spare me a little time after lunch? I want to talk to you."

When, sometime later, Jack arrived, having telephoned the plantation office, Alex was at the house to meet him and his guest. He made it quick and final, going out to the car and saying, "How are you, Mr. Amenly? Lilia has told me about you."

He had no need to say more. Amenly understood, and the rest of the time there was as one of his recurring dreams, the dreams in which he was going some place but never arriving, in which he tried to pack and couldn't, called a telephone number and received no answer, or in which he tried to run and something held his feet immobile.

Lilia said, at the door, "Hello, Roger." She added, "I can't make the rounds with you, Jack. I've a dozen things to do. I'll expect you back here for a drink." She could look at Amenly and not be ashamed. She was free. Alex had freed her.

The houses of the workers, the hospital, the recreation center, the clinic, the mill, the cane fields—Roger made the right inquiries, exhibited proper enthusiasm. He wanted a drink badly. He had been temperate since coming here. He was a man who drank moderately, except at certain periods. This might be one of them, he thought grimly.

He took only one cocktail in Lilia's house, looking at her sitting beside her husband, her eyes clear and grave, and his resentment and frustration grew. He watched Jack. He thought, He's in love with her, I suppose. He was wrong: Jack had, in his own phrase, got over Lilia long since; but she had spoiled him for other women. He knew where and how to find his own amusements, always discreetly. Not until Terry's arrival had he envied any man, not even Alex.

But then, he'd always envied Chris, although what had there been to envy—except Lilia, once? He'd had more reason to envy Robert, but Robert was dead, and you didn't envy a dead man, or did you?

Driving back, Amenly, thinking of Chris and Terry, told himself, They've sweated it out all day. And they'll know soon enough. From Lilia. I promise a bomb, I deliver a dud!

He made himself sit through dinner; if he drank more brandy than usual, surely no one noticed. But Chris noticed and told Terry. "It didn't come off."

"What makes you think so?" "I know it. We're playing golf tomorrow. I'll get a chance and call Lilia."

He did so, from the clubhouse, saying, "It's Chris. Is everything all right?" and her answer came instantly. She said, "I talked to Alex after lunch yesterday. There was no reason why I couldn't have. Months ago, except that I was ashamed. It's all right, Chris, it's fine."

"He knows?" asked Chris. He didn't mean Alex now, and she answered, "He knew at once, as soon as he and Alex met."

"I'm glad, dear," he said, and went back to the others. Terry looked up, and he nodded slightly, and put his hand on her shoulder. The drink he held, thought, I'm drinking too much; and then, I'm sick of it here, sweetness and light, and people saying aha and too many flowers and too much blue sky.

But when he said he must think of making a reservation, he had imposed upon them too long, Cordelia expostulated, "We'd hoped to show you Naniola." She explained Naniola, the little island. They usually spent some time there in the spring. But perhaps they could manage a weekend now, she said brightly. Terry had never been there.

So they came to Naniola by air and by cabin cruiser and the island rose from the sea, rocky and high on one side and with long beaches and sheltered waters on the other. It had beauty and peace, and Terry held Chris's hand and wished herself alone with him.

The house was long, rambling, and not much to look at, with shabby comfortable furniture and its own lighting system, which sometimes did not work. The plumbing was antiquated, but the gardens were wonderful. The people who had been brought to Naniola long ago still lived there, or their sons and grandsons did. They had their own store and a dispensary. If any were ill, they were taken quickly from the island. They farmed, a small, contented group. The younger men had gone to war, and those who had returned were back again. There wasn't much to do, Cordelia explained, for visitors. Fish, ride—they had good horses—explore the island, which wouldn't take long, lie on the beach, swim...

Amenly hated the place on sight. Too small, too smug, too story-book. It had not even the interest of being forbidden. People came and went, many people. Naniola had been built for pleasure, long, long ago.

They'd brought meat with them, for refrigeration. They lived simply there, there was always fish, the vegetable garden and the fruit. Jack apologized, "We picnic on Naniola," he said.

That's all I lack, thought Amenly, awake in a vast hard bed in a big bare room, a picnic.

But there was a good cellar under the house and a storeroom with pre-war liquor. It was offered him, as to any guest, so he drank, watched Terry and Chris, resenting them deeply and with an increasing violence. There was nothing he could do to them, they were secure, they had everything. It did not occur to him that the older Russells wouldn't know Terry's recent circumstances. Her friends might not, but her husband and his people would. He could do no damage, merely strike to wound.

The opportunity came as a source of release when, on the second night after dinner, Hugo spoke of Terry's father. "Pity he couldn't be with us," he said. "He would have liked this place, I think."

He did not know what made him say that, sitting there, looking at his nephew's wife, thinking, What a nice girl, but I should talk with her, she must exercise her influence over Chris; and then remembering her father.

Amenly was in that stage of drunkenness which is not immediately obvious to one's companions. He had had several cocktails before dinner, coming in, finding the shaker there and no one in the room, and several highballs after dinner, and he had eaten next to nothing, his resentment a hard knot in his stomach. And now he said:

"He would have liked it very much. Good old Mark Austin." He heard himself giggle, as a woman does, on a high note, saw Terry's shocked, still face, saw Chris rise and go over to stand near her. And added, striking out with that enormous sense of release, "Pity he was a crook, wasn't it—or that they found him out?"

"Amenly," said Chris, and saw that Hugo and Jack had also risen and that Cordelia, dropping her knitting, was coming over to take Terry's hand and say, "Terry, my dear."

"Well, he was a crook," said Amenly irritably, "and if he ruined himself he also ruined a great many other people. They didn't all take the easy way out—as Austin did. Didn't you know? Ask Terry, then, perhaps she knew all along."

Food Surplus Plan Opposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Truman administration is getting set to head off farm plan suggestions that food surpluses be given to low-income families.

Proposals of this nature are being discussed in some Capitol Hill and farm group circles as a substitute for the administration's Brannan farm program. A goal of the latter is lower food prices for all, with the government assuring farmers good returns by means of payments from the federal treasury.

Right now the government holds sizeable surpluses of butter, dried eggs, dried milk and potatoes. It expects to have to buy large quantities of pork, lard and other hog products later this year when hog marketings are likely to be very heavy.

Frost Occurs In This Area

Damage Light Due to Matured Crops

With an official reading of 32 degrees for the low point at an early hour Friday morning, a heavy frost occurred over much of the community, and ice was frozen to nearly one-eighth of an inch in thickness.

Inasmuch as all crops had matured, the frost did comparative little damage.

It was the coldest morning of the season to-date, and the frost lasted until after sunup, when it gave way quickly before the rising temperature, which had rebounded to 40 degrees by 8 A. M.

The low point during Thursday was 58 degrees.

Light frost had been recorded in some parts of the county a little earlier this month.

High-Paying Civil Service Jobs Open

If you can qualify as a spare parts specialist, you can earn between $3,727 and $5,232 a year in the civil service.

No written test is required.

Applicants are rated on experience, which must be of a technical mechanical nature in connection with parts for tractors, earth moving equipment, refrigeration or water purification.

Experience with parts for electric generators, power equipment, materials handling equipment, etc., also counts.

Additional information and application forms are available at the Washington C. H. postoffice.

Applications will be accepted until October 13 for the openings, which were announced by the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners at the Columbus General Depot.

Services Are Held For Ray F. Croker

Services for Ray F. Croker were held at 2 P. M. Thursday at the Hook and Son Funeral Home, with Rev. C. B. Tigner officiating.

Rev. Tigner read the Scripture and offered prayer. He also read the hymns, "Rock of Ages" and "The Old Rugged Cross."

The services were well-attended, with the many floral tributes cared for by the pallbearers. Burial was made in the family lot in the Washington C. H. Cemetery, with committal services conducted by Rev. Tigner.

The pallbearers were Frank Grim, O. W. Landrum, Bud Brownell, Lester Ball, Hubert Follis, Richard Kelly, Abe Goldfarb and Emery Lucas.

Mrs. Rebecca Whitacre Is Called by Death

Navy Attack Protest

"Police officers were not consulted in any way, shape or manner in reference to the proposal demonstration. We were just asked to furnish a police detail. We had 250 officers and five ambulances in the area."

"It was no place to put on such a stunt as that. Thousands in the area, especially children, had no knowledge of what could happen."

Comment From Navy A navy spokesman, asked to comment on Commissioner Sullivan's statement, said:

"All I can say is that these people who were casualties were in an area that was restricted to the general public. It was regarded as a safe area for special observers, radio and newspaper men and photographers."

"I don't believe the lives of any spectators were unduly endangered."

"What happened was a material failure. It was not one of the underwater TNT demolition charges which exploded. The mortar that caused the casualties was merely a signal gun. It was not there to cause noise or simulate gunfire; it was there merely to signal the boats to come in."

"As for consulting with the police, the arrangements were made by the Marine Corps League. I assume they obtained permission from the city, if not from the police."

Thomas J. MacQueen of Baton Rouge, La., national commandant of the Marine Corps League, said: "Great pains had been taken to

A-Bomb Scientist 'X'

(Continued from Page One) tried to weave around Weinberg a network of evidence to support its demands that he be brought to trial on perjury charges.

The committee quoted what it said was part of a report from intelligence agents--it didn't identify the agents--regarding instructions Nelson gave Weinberg.

"The instructions were," it said, "that Weinberg should furnish Nelson with information concerning the atomic bomb project so that Nelson could, in turn, deliver it to the proper officials of the Soviet government. x x x

"Nelson told Weinberg that all Communists engaged on the atomic bomb project should destroy their Communist party membership books, refrain from using liquor and use every precaution regarding their espionage activities."

Furthermore, the committee quoted testimony from James Sterling Murray, former security chief for the atomic project in the San Francisco area, that he and agents Harold Zindle and George Rathman watched a meeting in Weinberg's home at Berkeley, Calif., from the roof of the apartment next door.

VERY RARELY does an owl visit the city, but this one was flying around the Bronx, N. Y., when he decided to rest for a while in a parked car. When the auto's owner came along, the bird gave a loud "whoow" and flew away to the delight and amazement of a crowd of kids. (International)

Tokyo Rose Guilty

(Continued from Page One) jurors would have liked to acquit the 35-year-old woman known to GIs as "Tokyo Rose," but "we did the only thing we thought possible under the judge's instructions."

Actually, she was convicted on only one of the eight counts in the indictment. That one related to her broadcast from radio Tokyo in October, 1944, about the Leyte Gulf battle.

Kenichi Oki, an official of radio Tokyo, testified the defendant said "now you fellows have lost all your ships. You are really orphans of the Pacific. How do you think you are going to get home."

That, the jury decided, was sufficiently damaging to American morale to constitute treason.

Her defense was based primarily on this contention: Her wartime broadcasts on the "Zero Hour" were harmless entertainment, and she and prisoners of war on the same program really tried to boost instead of lower morale.
